NHATBAO HAUS

NHATBAO HAUS is designed specifically for a young photographer couple. Notably, the owner of this apartment is the son of renowned artist Le Thiet Cuong, who is famous for his minimalist contemporary folk paintings. The apartment's design features a strong Gallery art element, harmoniously combining traditional and modern aspects, with a free plan and clever use of colors. The young couple has a modern lifestyle, having studied abroad, but they are still influenced by the traditional culture from their father, artist Le Thiet Cuong. Therefore, they want their home both modern and youthful, while still retaining the refinement and depth of traditional culture. The harmony between traditional and modern is clearly expressed through the choice of colors and materials.

Viet Bauhaus

We were very impressed with the Bauhaus color palette, with basic plain colors, as well as the excellent combination of industrial and modern materials such as concrete and metal. However, GAM decided to adapt this color palette to the traditional Vietnamese style and materials. The basic Bauhaus colors, such as red, yellow, and blue, have been toned down and given the effect of traditional materials such as lacquer or oil paint. Wooden furniture is also painted to show the wood texture, creating a unique beauty. In particular, rattan is used skillfully and sparingly, contributing to enhancing the traditional aspect of the Bauhaus art space.

Bauhaus style meet Vietnamese culture

Traditional materials such as wood, rattan, and lacquer blend with modern materials, characteristic of the industrial era, such as metal and raw concrete, creating a strong contrast in the design of the apartment.

Home Artspace

The apartment is not merely a place to live, but also a vibrant and creative exhibition space where every corner and detail has a high artistic value. Artworks are skillfully and harmoniously arranged according to color, material, including paintings, photographs, sculptures, handicrafts, posters, etc.

All contribute to a unique aesthetic space.

In addition to paintings and sculptures by artist Le Thiet Cuong, the place also exhibits unique photographs by the owner, photographer Le Nguyen Nhat, along with posters and paintings by other artists. The special feature is that the artworks are constantly changed and rearranged periodically, bringing freshness and endless inspiration to the living space.
